A MINI-WORKSHOP ON FLOODPLAIN MANAGEMENT AND FLOOD INSURANCE
FOR YOU!

ATTENTION
LOCAL OFFICIALS AND INSURANCE PROFESSIONALS

As you know, much of New York State has been hit hard by floodwaters in recent weeks and 27 counties have been declared disaster areas eligible for public assistance. Local code enforcement, public works and highway officials play a key role in rebuilding damaged public facilities so that future floods will result in less damage.

New York's insurance community plays a key role in making federally backed flood insurance coverage available to property owners statewide and in reducing disaster relief costs caused by flooding.

In connection with these efforts, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), the New York State Emergency Management Office (NYSEMO) and the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (NYSDEC) want to brief you on the latest details of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) and hear your comments and questions.

A series of three-hour mini-workshops on Floodplain Management and Flood Insurance will be offered at the following locations. Although counties listed are formally declared as disaster areas, this flood insurance program is open to anyone from surrounding counties as well.
